OUTLINES PROGRAM TO ADVERTISE STATE

A STATE WIDE MEETING TO BE HELD ON APRIL 6 AND 7

PICKENS ATTENDS MEET

Plan Is to Tell People About Missouri, Its Advantages and Resources

George A. Pickens, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, returned Sunday afternoon from Jefferson City where he attended a meeting of the "Greater Missouri Movement" on Saturday. Editor Fred Hull who also attended the meeting made stop overs at Columbia where he visited his son, Ray Hull, over Sunday and at Kansas City.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat had the following about the meeting Saturday:

Jefferson City, Mo., Feb. 26—The "Greater Missouri Movement," inaugurated by the Missouri Press Association, took definite shape Saturday when the congressiona committee met in Jefferson City and arranged for a joint convention of newspaper editors and representatives of chambers of commerce, farm and civic organizations to be held in Jefferson City, April 6 and 7.

The purpose of this state gathering is to perfect a permanent organization, the purpose of which will be to advertise Missouri, first to its own people and then to the world.

The plan is to tell people about Missouri, the state's history and traditions; its people and their educational and charitable institutions; to give reliable information about the state's mineral and material resources and, in fact, acquaint the people of the world with the advantages of Missouri.

It was suggested the name of the permanent state organization be the "Missouri Association" and its slogan "For a Greater Missouri."

To make the state convention representative of the editors, chambers of commerce and farm and civic recommended and the congressional committee adopted the following basis of representation:

One newspaper man from each county except St. Louis and St. Louis County, which are allotted three from each of the congressional districts and Jackson County, to which five are allotted; two delegates from each chamber of commerce and one delegate from each farm or civic organization.

Gov. Hyde spoke briefly before the committee on the importance of the work which the press association had undertaken and pledged his active cooperation to the movement to advertise the state. He suggested that the artgravure section of Missouri metropolitan newspapers offers an effective method of portraying the state's advantages in every line of endeavor.

The Congressional Committee held its session in a board room adjacent to Gov. Hyde's office in the State Capitol.

This committee, composed of one publisher or editor from each of the sixteen congressional districts of the state, was appointed February 10 at a meeting of the Press Association held in St. Louis.

Work is being continued by the soliciting committee of the M. E. Church, South, on plans looking forward to the erection of a new church edifice. At present things are looking very favorable to raising the $25,000 goal of the committee. If they are successful a like sum of $25,000 will be given by the conference for the erection of a new church.

'BIG TIM' JOVIAL ENROUTE TO PRISON

CHICAGO LABOR LEADER STOPS AT K. C.

NO USE OF KICKING

Says Murphy and Declares He Is No Quitter—Supreme Court Denies Rehearing

Kansas City, Feb. 26—"Big Tim" Murphy, Chicago labor leader, was in a jocular mood this morning when he stepped from his train at Union Station here for a few minutes relaxation before resuming his journey to the federal prison at Leavenworth. Murphy was convicted of participation in the $385,000 Dearborn Station mail robbery at Chicago and must serve a fours years sentence.

"There's no use of kicking, boys," he told newspaper men today, "I am going through with this and you know me, I'm no quitter."

Murphy was neatly attired and in the best of humor. He was in the custody of Sam Howard, United States deputy of Chicago. However he was not handcuffed or shackled in any manner; Howard explaining that Murphy had been a model prisoner.

Murphy related a few incidents of his trip since leaving Chicago last night. At nearly every station along the road large crowds turned out to meet him. Impromptu receptions were held at several stations along the route, it was said.

Bincenco Cosmano, Murphy's chief aid in the mail robbery, was aboard the same train. However Murphy was not aware of his presence, according to Howard.

Washington, Feb. 26—The Supreme Court of the United States today denied the petition for a rehearing, made by Timothy B. "Big Tim" Murphy of Chicago, convicted of complicity in the post office robbery case of Dearborn Station, Chicago.

It refused also to issue an order staying the imprisonment sentence imposed upon Murphy by the lower courts.

ST. JOSEPH Y.W.C.A. IS SWAMPED 88-3

COLLEGE GIRLS WIN A LOPSIDED VICTORY

ROSENDALE GIRLS WIN

In Exciting Game They Defeat Second Girls' Team of the College 17 to 13

Saturday night on the Maryville high school court the State Teachers College girls basketball team romped away in a 88 to 3 victory from the St. Joseph Y. W. C. A. sextet. The same night, in a curtain raiser the College second team lost to Rosendale High School team by a score of 17 to 13.

In the feature game the College Kittycats clearly demonstrated their superiority over their opponents and scored almost at will. They played almost as if the other team was not on the court and both forwards shot goal after goal from all parts of their section.

The score at the end of the first half was 38 to 0. The Maryville guards were too much for the St. Joseph forwards and these forward were unable to get an unguarded shot. The score remained a goose-egg in their favor until near the last of the game when Ross, one of the St. Joseph forwads, looped a long one from the field and then counted once from the foul line.

About the only interest in the game was to see just how large a score the local girls could run up in the forty minutes of play. In the first half they ran up a thirty-eight point lead and in the second half they scored an even fifty points. This score is the largest ever recorded in a basketball game in Maryville.

The Maryville forwards about divided the scoring. Lethel Garten tossed in ten baskets in the first half and thirteen in the second, totaling twenty-three and Mabel Raines scored nine field goals in the initial period and twelve in the second, making a total of twenty-one goals. Miss Raines did a lot more feeding of the ball however.

In the preliminary game the interest was large because the score was never wide enough to give one team a cinch on the game. The first half ended with the Maryville girls leading by a score of 8 to 7.

In the second half the Rosendale girls came back stronger and soon the score was tied and just before the game ended the visitors pulled out in the lead by four points and held it.

Evelyn Raines was the star for the locals. Infact she so far outclassed her team-mates that she should have been playing on the first team. Hardwick at guard and Thompson at running center were the only two others on the team who exhibited any basketball to speak of. True, they were in the game but they didn't deliver the goods expected of a college team.

Of all the players in both Saturday night it was Ruth Miller who was the star. Her brilliant playing at running center was the key-note of the victory for it was she that intercepted pass after pass and worked the ball back to her forwards.

U. S. MAY ENTER WORLD AFFAIRS

HARDING MAKES STARTLING REQUEST FOR ENTRY

A COURT OF JUSTICE

For International Affairs Under League of Nations Auspices, but With Reservations

Washington, Feb. 26.—President Harding's request for participation in a permanent court of international justice to be organized and set up by the League of Nations, came only after the futility was shown of an entirely separated court dissociated from the League, it was stated officially today.

Secretary of State Hughes believes that the United States must adhere to League court under the reservations proposed, or be put in the position of abandoning any hope of settlements of international disputes by judicial methods, so long advocated by American statesmen.

(Kansas City Star)

Washington, Feb. 26.—Summing up President Harding's proposal that the United States join in the permanent court of international justice organized under the auspices of the League of Nations, these points stand out inescapably:

It is the most definite step taken by the present administration in the direction of the League of Uations.

It would put the United States in what probably is the most important single creation or adjunct of the league the members of which are elected by league members.

It means the United States is "going in" instead of "staying out," in world affairs and commits the administration finally to a course of co-operating with other nations to preserve world peace.

No Unofficial Observers.

It means the abandoning of the isolationist policy for good. If the senate agrees to the President's proposal, American representatives will sit in the council and assembly of the league on a parity with full members of the league, when judges of the court are elected. They will not be "unofficial observers," but official participants in the deliberations of these sessions.

It means the end, for good and all, of all talk of an "association of nations" to supplant the league, and is the longest step taken by the administration toward recognizing the league as a going concern set up in the interest of world peace.

It forecasts further steps in the same general directions if the senate agrees to this initial brreak.

The proposal, if adopted, would mean limited American participation in the proceedings of the league council and assembly to the extent of taking part in electing judges of the tribunal, but the project is conditional upon the nations now adhering to the court accepting a reservation that the United States shall have no legal relation to the league or assume any obligation under the league covenant.

The Paramount Issue Now.

President Harding's announcement came with startling unexpectedness to the senate and everyone else, injecting a wholly unexpected complication in the last week of the congressional session, which puts ship subsidy, farm credits and every other legislative consideration in the shade.

It raises almost limitless possibilities of the senate reviving the whole subject of the League of Nations, the relation of the United States thereto, and the Hardiag-Hughes international policy.

Little chance is seen that favorable action may be had in the one week of the life of the sixty-seventh congress remaining. Friends of the league would need to present an amendment to have the United States join the league, to inaugurate a debate which could not be concluded in six months of senate session.

Miss Minnie B. James spent yesterday in St. Joseph with her sister, Miss Lillian James, who underwent a tonsil operation a week ago today. She is now very much improved.

WALLACE HALTS PACKER MERGER

FIRST STEP AGAINST PLAN BY AGRICULTURE SECRETARY

FOR RESTRAINT OF TRADE

Wallace Claims Merger Would Eliminate Morris from Competition—Hearing April 2

Washington, Feb. 26—The first move on the part of the United States government to prevent a merger of the Armour and Morris packing interests, was taken today when Secretary of Agriculture Wallace served informal notices upon both the packing companies that amalgamation of the two would be in violation of the "packers and stockyards act" and "create a combination in restraint of trade."

Secretary Wallace said that he had learned that the Armour and Morris Companies had entered a tentative agreement for completion of the proposition, but that the merger had not been fully consumated. He held that the merger would possibly form a first step in the amalgamation of the so-called "big five" packers.

Wallace will hold a hearing on April 2 to review the evidence against the proposed merger, and to hear the case of the packers. At the conclusion, if the evidence warrants, he has authority to issue against the packers, a writ for them" to cease and desist" in their merger project. Then they have the right to appeal to the United States court of appeals. A fine from $500 on $10,000 for each day's violation of the order, and imprisonment up to five years, is provided, after the final decision of the court.

A preliminary complaint by Secretary Wallace today charges that J. Ogden Armour, acting for Armour & Co., contracted with Morris & Co., to acquire all the assets of Morris & Co.

He charged that this transaction provides for an entire elimination of Morris & Co. from the packing field and constituted a violation of the "packers and stockyards act."

Chicago, Feb. 26—The necessity for acquisition by Armour & Co. of Morris & Co., resulted from government war control, which left the packers "holding the sack," said F. Edson White, president of the former corporation this afternoon. He alluded to Secretary Wallace's plans as that of a "test case."

An Injury Stops Bock-Bass Bout

But Hopkins Fans Saw 37 Minutes of Speedy Mat Work—Men May Wrestle It out here Later.

Thirty-seven minutes of scrappy, speeding wrestling kept the mat fans of Hopkins "up on their toes" Saturday night in the match between Earl "Jigger" Bock of Hopkins, and Johnny Bass of Lincoln, Nebraska. An unavoidable accident occurred that brought an abrupt end to this clever exhibition of wrestling, when Bock was thrown from the stage in one of the wrestling maneuvers, and sustained a wrenched back that prevented him from continuing.

A good crowd of fans from Bedford, Iowa, Maryville and other surrounding towns attended the match, and all agreed it was one of the best ever staged at Hopkins, and expressed their desire to see the same grapplers appear in a future bout to a finish. It is probable that the American Legion boys of Maryville will secure these two men for a headliner card here within the next two or three weeks. Both men are willing and anxious for another meeting. If arranged, it will go to a finish and the winner will take all. This match should attract much attention here as both men are known. Bock played center on the College football team in 1921.

Will Serve Out Her Fine and Sentence at the County Jail Here Instead of at Grant City

Margaret Hewitt who was given a sentence of sixty days in jail and a fine of $275 by a jury in the Worth County Circuit Court last week became a prisoner today at the county jail here and will serve out her sentence and fine. She was confined to the Worth County jail but it was decided to move her to the jail in Maryville on account of the jail at Grant City not being in proper condition and being in the basement of the court house building.

Sheriff Sam Barber and his daughter of Grant City brought Margaret Hewitt to Maryville today. She was convicted of violating the prohibition law.

RADICAL PLAN FOR MERCHANT MARINE

LASKER ANNOUNCES POLICY AFTER SUBSIDY DEFEAT

STARTLE SHIPPING WORLD

Chairman Lasker After Conference With Harding Announces Intentions of an Unexpected Policy

Washington, Feb. 26—Failure of the administration's ship subsidy bill in Congress will result in the establishment of a "radical and unexpected policy" for the operation of the merchant marine, A. B. Lasker, chairman of the United States Shipping Board, announced today folowing a conference with President Harding at the White House.

The plan of opponents to get a decisive vote on the bill this afternoon was blocked shortly after 3 o'clock when Senator Ransdell, Democrat, of Louisiana, obtained the floor and launched into a long speech on the subsidy measure.

Lasker said that the new policy would not be made public or put into effect until it was passed by the board, but that it would "startle the shipping world." The plan is to dispose of the ships at an enormous loss or for an entirely new scheme of operation. President Harding is understood to approve the Lasker plan.

"Dust Unto Dust."

(From "The Life of Christ" by Giovanni Papin.)

Egypt, the rich spawning bed of all the infamies and the magnificences of the first epoch, that African India, where the waves of history broke and died, where but a few years before, Pompey and Antony had finished the dream of empire and of life, this prodigious country, born of water, burned by the sun, covered with the blood of many peoples, inhabited by many animal gods, this country, paradoxical and supernatural, was by contrast the predestined asylum for the fugitive.

The wealth of Egypt was in mud, in the rich snake breeding mud which the Nile rolled out each year upon the desert. Death was the obsession of Egypt. The soft, prosperous people of Egypt would not accept death, denied death, thought they could conquer death with graven images, with embalmings, with sculptured representation of flesh-and-blood bodies. The rich, portly Egyptian, son of mud, adorer of the scared bull, and the dog-headed god, could not resign himself to dying. He manufactured for his second life immense necropolises full of bandaged and perfumed mummies, of images of wood and marble, and raised up pyramids over his corpses, as if stone and mortar might save them from decay.

When Jesus could speak He was to pronounce the verdict against Egypt; the Egypt which is not only on the banks of the Nile, the Egypt which has not yet disappeared from the face of the earth along with its kings, its sparrow hawks and its serpents. Christ was to give final and eternal answer to the terror of the Egyptians. He was to condemn the wealth which comes from mud and all the fetiches of the pot bellied river dwellers of the Nile, and He was to conquer death without [illegible] kingdoms, without statues of granite and basalt. His victory over death is won by teaching that sin is greedier than worms and that spiritual purity is the only aromatic which preserves from decay.

The worshippers of mud and animals, the servants of riches and the beast, could not save themselves. Their tombs, high as mountains though they be, decked out like queens palaces, white and fair to see as those of the Pharisees, guard only ashes, dust returning again to dust, even as the dead bodies of animals. Death cannot be conquered by copying life in wood and stone. Stone crumbles away and turns to dust, wood rots and turns to dust, and both of them are mud—eternal mud.

ROMANS BELIEVED IN OMENS

All Kinds of "Signs," Good and Bad, Had Direct Influence on Their Actions.

The ancient Romans were great believers in signs and seldom cared to undertake an enterprise without consulting them. Some persons looked at birds flying overhead. Others cut up animals, to see what "signs" were inside. Perhaps most interesting of all was the custom of keeping certain chickens and calling them sacred. If some one wanted to know if a plan would succeed, he tried to feed the chickens. If they ate heartily, it was a good sign. If they refused to eat, the plan was probably given up. When a Roman died, food and drink were placed beside his body in the tomb. Animals were sacrificed, and milk or wine was thrown on the ground. This was repeated every year. If the relatives forgot, the soul was supposed to become evil and to bring bad luck. Animals were sacrificed in honor of the gods, as well as for the spirits of men. Pigs, oxen and sheep were the creatures most often killed. Flour and salt were sprinkled over each animal, its head was covered with cloths, and then the priest raised a large knife or an ax for the death-dealing blow. Prayers were said by those looking on. The bones and fat were placed on the altar and burned.

That's Different.

Times were hard and bill collectors came nearly every day to see Ole. This annoyed him very much. Every time a collector came he threw up his hands, shook his head and talked Norwegian. One day a mowing-machine collector called and found another collector ahead of him, also trying to get money from Ole.

"I've been working on him for nearly an hour, but the poor fellow can't understand a word of English," said the first collector, "so there's no use of wasting any more time on him."

"That's too bad," returned the other. "I wanted to tell him that as I was coming up the road one of his cows broke through the fence and is—"

Before he could say another word, Ole jumped three feet from the ground and shouted. "By yimby jimpup, var she go?" and disappeared down the road in a cloud of dust.—Forbes Magazine.

Typhoid in Rural Districts.

Typhoid fever is almost twice as prevalent in the rural districts of this country as in the cities. This has been definitely shown by the figures gathered in the registration district of the United States, where the death rate in the rural localities was 9.6 per 100,000 persons, while in the cities it was 5.5. There are states, however, which show that an excess of rural population need not carry with it a high typhoid fever death rate. Wisconsin is a conspicuous example. This state, with more than half its population rural, had a typhoid fever rate of 2.5 per 100,000, which is identical to that of Massachusetts, which is almost entirely urban.

Fixing Radio Aerials.

The radio aerial repairman is here. Not to be outdone by these reaping the shekels in this golden age of radio, the lineman has merged a new job with his former remote occupation of repairing clotheslines in backyards.

For a small sum he repairs your radio aerial which may have downed during a storm.

"In some blocks I make more money fixing aerials than repairing washlines," he said. "The work is simple compared to climbing line poles and much safer. And you don't have to know a lot about science to fix the wires."—New York Sun.

Going One Better.

One of the brightest "stars" in "The Island King" at the Adelphi theater is Nancie Lovat. She sings and acts charmingly.

I paid Miss Lovat a visit the other evening, and she asked me if I had "heard this one." I hadn't.

Two kiddies were engaged in a bragging match.

"My mummy's gone to the shops to pay some bills," said Joan, proudly.

"My mummy doesn't have to," sneered Doris. "The men come to the house for ours."

Here is another of Miss Lovat's stories.

"George!" murmured the girl, as she nestled close to him, "cigars are nothing but a habit."

"Yes, and you've now broken one of my habits," said the young man, as he sadly withdrew the remains of a Havana from his pocket.—London Tit-Bits.

D. A. R. Members Give Original Toasts In Verse On Washington

A program of after dinner toasts in original verse was given at the luncheon which the Daughters of the American Revolution gave Thursday at the Girls' Residence Hall in observance of George Washington's birthday. Three of them appear below and three were published in Saturday's edition.

"Washington, the Soldier"

By the sweet scented woods of Virginia
In the land of the Magnolia tree
Where the beautiful blue Potomac flows
So majestically on toward the sea
There nestled a modest cottage;
Not different from many around;
But it sheltered an unannounced hero
With a halo of glory unerowned.

Here history has woven a story
Of which bards and poets have sung
For here lived the illustrous soldier
The brave George Washington
And as I read the story
Of the mother and her joy
I wonder if she ever thought
He would be a soldier boy

I wonder as she saw him grow
Into manhood strong and true
Ih her anxious heart gave way to fear
Just as yours and mine would do
And when the cry "To Arms"
Rang out in clarion note and sad
Is she already now to give
To the cause her soldier lad

Our country's call came early
Nor t'was passed unheeded by
It found our soldier ready
To fight-if need be-die
And as he goes so fearlessly
And daringly leads on
The world applauds this peerless man
Our noble Washington

The war-clouds fast are gathering
The muffed drums beat low
And some lie dead at Lexington
As they on the Concord go
Our leader now his place must fill
And at each setting sun
Find men all eager to respond
To the call of Washington

Those dark dark days of suffering
Through hunger want and cold
His dauntless courage never failed
Nor did he seem less bold
He blazed the way to Liberty
And a glorious victory
He brought America out of night
Our patriot Washington

Brave "Father of our Country"
We honor you today
You made of us a nation
And we would this tribute pay
Your memory we will cherish well
Nor count our duty done-until
We teach our children all to love
The name of Washington.

—Mrs. Eugene Ogden.

"Washington, the Lover"

When Washington went out to woo,
The thirteen colonies all said "boo";
The Colonial flappers giggled "O my",
The Colonial dames said "Fie, O fie",
And every last woman of 'em passed him by
And thus lost the chance to get into "Who's Who."

But Washington never suffered defeat,
He always managed a neat retreat;
So he drew himself up and pulled in his sweater
Saying "every day I'm getting better and better."
And thus to the flappers, "Goodby Kiddo",
This time I try my luck with a widow.

Did he win his suit? I'll say he did
And the little blind God clapped down the lid.
They plighted their troth in the month of May
And the thirteen colonies shouted "Hooray."

—Mrs. G. H. Colbert.

"Washington, the Father of His Country"

I understand we've met today,
We Daughters with the sole intent
Of offering homage, not display,
To our revered First President,

We've heard—when baby George was born;
How Georgie grew into a lad
Who rose up early in the morn
To trim up trees, both good and bad.

We've listened to a tale or two
Of George's revels while still young;
His early manhood; then a few
Of his great virtues have been sung.

How he amidst great stress and strife,
Horrors of war, bloodshed and sin
Took to himself a lonely wife
With two small children just thrown in.

Each lady well has done her part;
Now I am called, the very least.
Well, all here know, that from the start
The best comes last at every feast.

George Washington, the Father now
Of this great Country I'll portray,
While reverently our heads we bow
And loving tribute to him pay.

He who was first in peace, in war,
Dauntless in danger, fearless, brave,
Saw as a prophet from afar
Our country free, not England's slave.

When we were struggling and distressed
Despised, dejected and dismayed,
Cast forth from Mother England's breast;
He stood with us, and unafraid.

Formed of a seething cauldren then
Filled with disorder, discontent;
Ragged, perplexed and muttering men,
A Nation on our Continent.

Its griefs were his, its sorrows too;
Its wants and welfare were his own;
And for its sake his sword he drew,
Then sheathed it, with the victory won.

With courtly grace and lordly mein
He graced full of the festal board;
Heart wrung, pitying yet serene;
On and still on his vision soared.

He saw our nation great and strong,
Unrivalled and unconquered—then
Her people all a mighty throng
Of valiant, sturdy, stalwart men.

He with a father's loving care
Guarded his offspring while still young;
Nor time, wealth, talent did he spare;
His praises ever should be sung.

So Daughters let us here today
As with one voice, one tongue, one mind
To Washington this tribute pay
A Father generous, great and kind.

But as great virtues never show
Until death claims one for his own;
So there are others here we know
Will tell of later victories won.

They'll speak of his last peaceful days
Spent in his home in quiet rest;
Honored by all in various ways
Our President, the First, the Best.

Post Script—
With all the many trying things
That Washington was called to do
I'm confident he never had
To tussle with the Influenza, Grippe nor Flu.

—Mrs. Anderson Craig.

HENRY BOEDEKER, PROMINENT RAVENWOOD FARMER, DIES

Henry A. Boedeker, a prominent farmer of the Ravenwood vicinity, died early yesterday morning at his home, northeast of Ravenwood. Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning. Surviving are his widow and five children.

VOLGA VILLAGE IN AMERICA

New York Community Might in Effect Have Been Transported Bodily Into This Country.

Except for its one telephone wire and two automobiles, Little York, N. Y., might be a Volga peasant village transplanted bodily from Russia to the United States.

It has neither gas nor electricity; neither bathtubs nor sewers; no water supply except a spring.

In fact, Little York isn't even on the map or in the post office guide. None the less it is a place to know about, if not to live in, writes Eula McClary in the New York World.

It is a village of pistachio and chocolate eclair houses, sheltering 50 peasant families with a total population of 500. Modern inventions are luxuries beyond the purse of most of the inhabitants, and the desire of the rest.

Covering less than a square mile of fertile meadow and farm land, Little York lies at the foot of Mount Adam and Mount Eve, beautiful hills of the lower Catskills.

The inhabitants, Russian-German Lutherans from the Volga river valley, are descendants of those who followed Catherine II from Prussia into Russia when the German princess became the wife of the future czar.

They have brought with them to Little York the traditions and customs as well as the language and religion of their ancestors. Unlike American farmers, the peasants live in communities and work their individual plots of land. The village is situated on the hillside and overlooks the fertile meadow land, divided into various-sized "farms," according to the affluence of the owner. The largest farm has ten acres and the smallest, one.

It is serious to be minus, but the moment you increase the number of your red-blood-cells, you begin to become plus. That's why S. S. Your body fills to the point of power, your flesh becomes firmer, the age lines that come from thinness disappear. You look younger, firmer, happier, and you feel it, too, all over your body. More red-blood-cells! S. S. S. will build them. Ladies and gentlemen, a peaky, bony face doesn't make you look very important or pretty, does it? Take S. S. S. Lake and River Connected at New Orleans

The dream of New Orleans of one hundred years—the connecting up of the Mississippi and Lake Pontchartrain with a navigable waterway—was realized the other day when dock board dredges bored through the main levee and united the industrial canal with the river. The cost of the work was over $20,000,000. The illustration shows the water rushing through from the lake to the river when the break was made.

DOESN'T KNOW HOW TO LOVE

Gilbert Frankau Believes the Young Woman of Today Is Not Capable of Self-Sacrifice.

You have to watch the modern dance to see the modern girl at her most self-revealing. Regard her carefully, this bepainted, bepowdered, bemanicured product of our hectic age as she circles the ballroom. She dances emotionally, but her emotions are for the rhythm and the music, not for the mere male, her partner. Even in a man's arms she is as nearly sexless as the ladies of the Lysistrata. Gilbert Frankau writes in the Forum. Regarding her thus, one cannot help answering the question which stands at the head of this article in the most emphatic negative. No! Give her all her good qualities, her poise, her efficiency, her intelligence and you will still be forced to admit that—judging her superficially—the modern girl is not capable of a great and enduring love. To begin with, she is too selfish, too self-centered, too set on the pursuit of what she considers pleasure, to abandon herself to that self-sacrifice which is love at its best. And then, perhaps, she is too wise.

Myself, I am and have always been a strong supporter of the civil contract in matrimony. Matrimony, after all, is—however much sentimental, middle-aged fogeys like myself may like to regard it as a pure love affair—a legal undertaking. And I think that it is high time for the young man of today to understand that his legal undertaking when he marries a self-supporting or an independent young woman is not confined purely and simply to housing her. The modern woman, you see, is something more than a mere domesticated pet. She requires her leisures, her pleasures and, more perhaps even than these, her full partnership rights.

STARLIGHT HEAT SPECTRUM

Scientist of Smithsonian Institution Explains How It May Be Determined.

By measuring a hundred millionth degree of temperature and a trillionth of an ampere of electric current, Dr. C. G. Abbot of the Smithsonian institution has determined for the first time the heat spectrum of starlight, as he announced in an address at the Carnegie institution of Washington.

Working with the 100-inch telescope at Mount Wilson observatory this fall, Doctor Abbot measured the heat at different parts of the spectrum of ten stars and the sun. The rays were dispersed by a spectroscope in a band similar to the rainbow.

The bright star Capella, which is very similar to our own sun in its spectrum, was found to furnish the equivalent of one horsepower to an area on the earth approximately equal to the state of Minnesota. But this prominent star is feeble compared with our sun, which is equal to a hundred billion Capellas and sends down on twenty square feet heat equal to a horsepower. On the whole earth Capella's heat equals 500 horsepower, and as all the stars together equal 500 Capellas, this would amount to one-quarter million horsepower over the whole earth from the stars alone.

Scottish Estates Being Sold.

Enormous estates in Scotland are going under the hammer, due in many cases to the taxes that have followed the war. As many as 310 square miles of forests, grouse moors and farms, with salmon and trout fishing, whole rivers and lochs, islands and mountains, and comfortable houses are offered for sale at the present time, including a large part of the Caledonian forest. Yacht anchorages and sea fishing are plentiful.

The briefest statement of the game bags on some of the properties, and of the average takes of trout and salmon, brings into strong relief the fact that, like Scott's "Finnan haddock," the sporting thus indicated "has a relish of a very peculiar and delicate flavor," inimitable elsewhere.

A Law Creating A State Board of Censors of Motion Pictures in Missouri Has Become A Necessity

Editor Democrat-Forum:

House Bill No. 217 of the present 1923 Session of the Legislature aims to create such a Law.

The motion picture business has in fact become an educational system. It teaches by example. And whatever the pretense, too many of its examples tend to teach crime and corrupt morals. It is not necessary to recite the growth and financial power of that business. The motion picture show is the only cultural influence for millions of persons. Its influence for good or evil can then be easily imagined and need not be described.

Now competition is keen, and especially in the cities prurient and salacious themes and shows are selected to scream for audiences. The experiences of too many persons in this State and of the official censors elsewhere prove, that the pictures as a whole have not been improving in character as the producers are wont to assert in their resistance of legal censorship. The producers oppose all censorship except by their own so-called National Board of Review, formerly called the National Board of Censorship. This operates in part to mislead the public into the belief that the National Government in some way review these pictures, etc.

The habitual visitor of the motion picture show as here presented, is living in a strange world and is in danger of having every moral standard debased. We are asked to enter resorts and as it were, to associate with the vile character that congregate there; we have the disgusting so-called bathing beach comedies; we are asked to be present at scenes of revelry and debauchery; we are asked to spend the evening with some notorious woman who in the past ages has made herself unusually infamous and now has found a film show imitator; we see films that, in short, are a detailed instruction in theft, burglary, indecency, vice and crime. Such vile scenes are shown in the film that they could not possibly be thought of on the stage nor acted thereon.

At present there is no legal censorship for the State of Missouri. The National Board of Review is an instrument of the producers and its review has been proved to be a farce in many cases. It has become in part an engine to fight legal censorship. The plain facts must be told.

The situation above outlined calls for the application of a remedy. There is no remedy except legal censorship.

Some of the films shown in Missouri have been prohibited in States that have legal censorship on the ground that they were too indecent to be shown.

It is no answer to say that the person who shows such a film ought to be prosecuted. In the first place the damage has in large part been done when the film has been shown. And in the second place, the manager of the showhouse is not the person primarily at fault. Again, if one goes to the exchange manager he will contend that he is retained to get customers for his film in the territory assigned to him, and that he is not supposed to know the contents of the films of his exchange. The producer is not available. And again, one must be very discreet about enforcing ancient laws against the modern motion picture business, because legal proceedings sometimes are made use of by shrewd managers for advertising persons.

Now, the motion picture ought to be kept up to the standard of morality. It is not fair to say that the general standard of morality is low and therefore one might let the motion picture business go down the same level. As a matter of fact, we can tell by the situation in St. Louis, with its large population, that if the standard were as low as is claimed, there would be more than one theatre of a certain type which we do not care to more particularly define, and a few years ago there were two of this type.

There is no solution of this problem of the motion pictures except by a legal State Censorship Board. Such a law ought not to be used as a revenue measure, though its cost of operation should be obtained by appropriate inspection fees.

Ohio, Kansas, Pennsylvania and Maryland for some time, and lately New York and Virginia have such a censorship law.

It has become imperative that a State supervision be exercised over the motion picture business. It is fully as important as the inspection of food, the supervision of railroads and other public utilities. Such supervision has become essentially necessary in the interest of public morals. The only kind of superintendence that will be effective will be the supervision of a State Board of Censors.

Wherever the principle of censorship has been attacked it has been sustained by the Courts. So for instance:

The Ohio State censorship law was sustained in Mutual Film Corporation v. Ind. Commission of Ohio, 236. U. S. 230 (1915).

The Kansas censorship law was upheld by the Supreme Court of the United States in the companion case of Mutual Film Corporation v. Hodges, 236 U. S. 248 (1915).

The decision of the Supreme Court of the United States was unanimous in both cases.

The Supreme Court quickly disposed of the question as if liberty of speech or of the press were involved.

The Court saying:

"We immediately feel that the argument is wrong or strained which extends the guarantee of free opinion and speech to the multitudinous shows which are advertised on the billboards of our cities and towns and which regards them as emblems of public safety, to use the words of Lord Camden, quoted by counsel, and which seeks to bring motion pictures and other spectacles into practical and legal similitude to a free press and liberty of opinion.

"The judicial sense supporting the common sense of the country is against this contention" ,236 U. S. 230).

The Pennsylvania censorship law was upheld by the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania in Buffalo Branch Mut. Film Corporation v. Breitinger, 250 Pa. 225 (1915).

And in view of the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in other cases no further action was taken relative to the Pennsylvania law.

The present pending bill (Session 1923) is bottomed on the Pennsylvania law and provides for a Board of Censors, three in number, one of whom shall be a woman, to be appointed by the Governor. The salary of each member of the Board is $3,000 per annum. The term of office is three years. The first appointed Board is to be appointed for terms of one, two and three years respectively.

The Board shall disapprove such films as are sacrilegious, obscene, indecent or immoral or such as tend in the judgment of the Board to debase or corrupt morals.

The censorship law requires that the film which is to be shown in the State of Missouri shall be first presented to the Board of Censors and if indecent or crime teaching, it shall not be allowed to be shown, or if it contain an indecent or crime teaching part, the offensive part, shall be first eliminated. Proper safeguards for an appeal to the Courts are provided, and for review a second time by the Board, etc., before an appeal to the Court. The fact of the prior showing of the film is to be proved to the public by the approval seal of the Board shown on the screen. There is to be a penalty for showing films not so reviewed by the Board. So for the advertising matter.

The censors must make a report and indicate the parts cut out, and in practice the fact that all are treated alike aids in sustaining the principle of censorship, and helps to raise the standard of the motion picture business.

The clerical help, etc., to carry out the work of the Board is provided for to the amount of $12,020, making, with the salaries of the Board, a total budget of $21,020 for salaries as compared with $32,460 for Pennsylvania censorship law salaries.

For the examination of each (original) an inspection fee of $2.00 is charged per reel of not in excess of 1,200 feet, and for each duplicate there is a charge of $1.00. (In Pennsylvania the charge for the duplicate is also $2.00).

The act requires the seal of the Missouri State Board of Censors to be exhibited in the film shown, to evidence the fact that the film has had pre-publicity inspection to secure the elimination of the immoral, indecent or vice or crime teaching parts, if any.

The Act does not apply to films for educational, charitable, or religious purposes by any church, religious association, library, museum, public or private school or institution of learning.

The Act is self-sustaining.

The inspection fees provided are sufficient to carry out the purpose of Act without any expense to the State or to its taxpayers, and will give the motion picture show owners that protection which privately they will admimit they would like to have, and which publicly they may not express because of their dependency upon the exchanges and producers.

State Censorship is a necessity because the producers, who are always asserting when the censorship question comes up that they should be allowed to "clean up from within the movies," either have not the power or the intelligence or the disposition to clean up. Certainly "fixing" against censorship, is not cleaning up the movies.

Shall the producers of the Motion Picture Industry furnish the education which as a matter of fact they do furnish for good or evil without any supervision whatever except of their own selection?

In all the States where Censorship of Motion Pictures has been in force for some time, it has been impossible for the producers to have the law repealed, and in fact in those States the law has always been tightened up to make it more and more effective. This has been done in spite of all the machinations of the producers.

Respectfully submitted,
Committee of Fifty, St. Louis, Mo.
Lansing F. Smith, President.
Howard Billman, Sec'y-Treas.

WOULD GET OIL FROM COAL

British Scientist Points Out How the Country Can Procure Adequate Supplies of Fuel.

Great Britain could produce enough oil for its navy and merchant marine from home-mined coal if the necessity arose. This was revealed by Dr. C. H. Lander of the fuel research board at the recent meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science.

Production of oil from home resources is extremely important to Great Britain, since an almost complete substitution of oil for coal has taken place in the navy and is being gradually followed by the merchant marine. Although coal, peat and shale can be made to yield liquid fuel, coal alone can be regarded as a possible source from which sufficient quantities could be produced by practical methods.

A ton of average bituminous coal will yield 14 gallons of fuel oil, or about six per cent by weight of the raw material used. For every 1,000,000 tons of oil produced 16,000,000 tons of coal will be used, and will yield also 11,000,000 tons of coke and 56,000,000 cubic feet of rich hydrocarbon gas, so that if satisfactory low temperature process on carbonization proves feasible the 35,000,000 tons of coal used annually for domestic purposes would produce 2,100,000 tons of oil, more than the peace requirements of the navy, and leave an enormous amount of manufactured fuel, which it would be necessary to induce domestic consumers to use in place of raw coal.

NO CONSIDERATION AT ALL

Naturally, Young Lady Was Indignant at the Demand Made by "Gump" Behind Her.

Judge Gary said at a steel men's banquet in New York:

"We are all selfish, of course—that's nature, but the selfishness of the bolshevistic, communistic class is something out of the ordinary.

"It reminds me of the young lady with the tall bunch of feathers in her hat. It was at the matinee, and a man behind her asked politely if she wouldn't take her hat off. She complied—she knew she had to, but she was careful to say to her companion in a loud, indignant voice that the man was sure to hear:

"'Ain't some people the selfish hogs? That gump asked me to take off my hat, and I was too much of a lady to refuse, of course; but wouldn't you think the darn old selfish pig might have known that holdin' the hat in my lap like this the feathers would be bound to come up above my eyes so's I couldn't see nothin' at all of what was happening on the screen!'"

"Getting Back" at Witty One.

Boston's merchant prince, Edward A. Filene, contrives to find time for many nonbusiness activities. He undertakes and capably discharges no end of public duties; he is a leader in various movements; he is particularly interested in activities calculated to bring workers and employers closer together. Also he has a reputation as a public speaker. Here's a Filene anecdote, told as narrated—not by Mr. Filene—to me:

The toastmaster at a big dinner was eager to shine as a brilliant wit. This ambition led him to perpetrate several crude, not to say cruel, jokes. When he came to introducing Mr. Filene, he told the audience that Mr. Filene had attained wide fame as an after-dinner speaker. "In fact," he added, "all one has to do is to drop a dinner in the slot and up comes a speech from Mr. Filene."—Forbes Magazine.

Shaw Pulls Some Old Stuff.

There is a story told of George Bernard Shaw that when some one in the audience hissed his play, he said to the offender, "I perfectly agree with you, sir, but what are two against so many?"

Witty enough that, but not entirely original. In 1747, John Brown was invited to become pastor of a church at Hingham. There was one man opposed to his appointment who said that he liked Mr. Brown's person and manner but disapproved of his preaching.

"Then," said Mr. Brown, "we are agreed. I do not like my preaching very well myself, but how great a folly it is for you and me to set up our opinion against that of the whole parish."—Boston Transcript.

Indian Fashion.

A woman who had been visiting in the West and who had seen many interesting Indians, bought some Indian dolls for her little Chicago friends.

The dolls were dressed in Indian fashion—shawl, colored handkerchief about head, moccasins, patchwork skirt and hand-made stockings. When she got home she looked to see what kind of underwear the Indians had made for the Indian dolls, and every one of them wore a georgette chemise!

Must even fashions as well as modern civilization reach the Indians?—Chicago Journal.

Water in a Loaf of Bread.

One ton of water to three pounds of flour is nature's receipt for making wheat bread, according to figures on rainfall published by the bureau of soils of the Department of Agriculture.

By controlling the water supply in irrigation, accurate measurement is possible, and this estimate is of the minimum requirement. Many crops need five times as much water.

Produce Review

Testing of dairy cows to determine whether they are paying board is shown to be of value in results of the Iowa cow testing associations. Three common cows representing the kind of animals that are found on the ordinary farm cost their owners an average of $1.13 for feed for every hundred pounds of milk produced. Good grade cows produce hundred pounds of milk at an average feed cost of 55 cents.

In estimating the average feed cost per cow, it was found that common cows cost on the average $51.30 per year while high-grade Holsteins cost $53.15. The poorest of the grade Holsteins used in the test produced almost twice as much milk as the best common cow. The common cows used in this comparison were better than the average Iowa cow which produced 2,709 pounds of milk in 1920.

Other tests conducted by the Iowa experiment station give proof as to the value of pure-bred sires in bringing about increased economy in production of dairy products.

Colder weather throughout the western producting territory caused some decrease as well as delay in cream deliveries and a consequent lighter make of butter. The markets seem to be pretty well cleaned up at the close of the week, with fair demand noted from consuming trade. Dealers however, are a little nervous about the future trend of the market.

Egg receipts have not been heavy, but quality is generally fine and demand from consuming trade continues to clear stocks as fast as they are received. Prices have shown a little stronger tone during the past week, due to the condition noted.

Too large a supply of live poultry in New York resulted in lower quotations there and a general reduction in paying prices throughout the producing sections. It is evident that there is a very liberal supply of poultry back on the farms still to be marketed, and that until this surplus is disposed of by either marketing or home consumption, prices will remain normal.

Ziegler Urges Many to Enter Contests

Superintendent Makes Announcement Today Relative to Annual Spring College Contests

At an assembly at the high school this morning Supt. L. E. Ziegler made some announcements relative to the annual High School Contests, held at the State Teachers College. There will be more contests than were ever held before this time. The contests are open to all high schools in the district, and will occupy three days time; April 26, 27 and 28. There will be only two classes of high schools, this year. Class A will contain schools of an enrollment of 151 or more, and Class B is the schools of 150 or less.

The following is the list of contests offered: agriculture, Home Economics, Dramatics, Fine Arts, Reading and Public Speaking, Tennis, Music, Track and Field events, Debate, Shorthand and Typewriting, and Essays. Many individual medals, and a number of loving cups will be awarded.

At this assembly, Miss Hawkins asked that more freshman and sophomores try out in the oratorical and declamation preliminaries. A number of seniors and juniors are entering these contests, but the sops and freshies seem to be a little bashful.

Girls Tennis at the College Is Now On

With Close of Basketball Season M MacLeod Issues Call for Players

Tennis for the girls at the State Teachers College started this afternoon. Since the basketball season has ended Miss MacLeod, head of the department of physical education for girls, has deemed it advisable for her girls to start in on tennis at once. Consequently the old net was hauled out and dusted today, the tennis balls were pumped up and the players, wielding a wicked racquet, warmed up for the start of the season.

Miss MacLeod plans to enter a team in the state meet which will be held at Tarkio this year. She has a world of material out and there are some players among them.

Ruth Miller and Lethel Garten, last year's champs, head the list. Both of these girls can be counted on to play well and both should improve over last year.
